

3 Signs Your Office Needs a New Daikin Air Conditioner

It's that time of year – your office is either sweltering or freezing and you and your coworkers are fighting over the most comfortable spots around the office. When this starts to happen, it's a sign that your air conditioner isn't doing the job anymore. Paying attention to the signs can help you replace your A/C early, and keep everyone in the office productive and comfortable.

HERE'S WHAT TO LOOK OUT FOR:

✓ Your A/C unit is over 10 years old.

Most units are only made to last 15-20 years, and costly repairs and poor performance is a sign it's time to upgrade.

✓ Expensive repairs.

If you're regularly repairing your air conditioner, you're likely wasting money when it may just be time to call it quits and upgrade. Don't hang on too long!

✓ Inefficiency.

Is your air conditioner actually functioning well? If you're still struggling to keep the office cool, or paying a huge bill to do so, it might be time to update your system and choose a model that will give you the comfort you and those in your office deserve.

Ready to make the change? Your coworkers will thank you. Our specialists at AAA Heating and Cooling can help you assess your unit's condition and recommend next steps for you. Call today to schedule a free consultation.